LIQUOR CURES Eczema

WHERE SALVES FAIL

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this: Don't improvise the disease karma in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage the skin to become a true cure of all excretory diseases. An intelligent physician will use the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

DANIELSON

Mary Goddard Gives Up Suicide Plan

Riverside Driving Park Being Put in Shape—Certification of High School Increased to Three Years.

Mary Goddard will not carry out her intention of drowning herself, as expressed in a letter written to a Boston paper on Saturday of last week. She has gone back to North Oxford, where she has lived, and has come to the attention of her relatives. They immediately took steps to straighten out the matter, and were successful in doing so. Mrs. Goddard, who is a native of this city, was located in Elmville, where she has been staying and where she was when the letter was received. She agreed to go back to the Massachusetts town. The difficulty in locating her, after the letter was received, was the fact that most of the people who knew her were familiar with her as Mary Goddard, her maiden name, and not as Mary Goddard.

UNRULY MAY.

Capricious Monthly with a Bad Record.

At the weather bureau at Bigg's Pond Monday morning the temperature was down to 36 degrees, only four degrees above the freezing point. During the day it was much warmer, but there was no sun. Eugene S. Nash knows differently. He supplied the following clipping, kept for years, to demonstrate that there have been other bad May's. On May 5, 1905, Nash said six inches of rain fell. On May 6, 1912, was a very snowy day. The morning of the snow was six inches deep on the level; no hay, no grass; apple trees and all other trees were covered with snow. A word that there was no appearance of blossoms of any kind whatever. May 25, 1912, the weather was covered with snow, apple trees in blossom, ice in the tub at the well. May 15, 1914, the ground was covered with snow; ice half an inch thick.

RIVERSIDE PARK

To Be Reclaimed Through Effort of Al Whitney.

Riverside driving park, scene of many a motorist's grief, is now being reclaimed by Al Whitney. As the result of the activity and interest of "Al" Whitney, long identified with the racing and auto business, the tract has been collected and the track rescued from its trend towards oblivion. The weeds and other growths have been removed from the course, which is now in fairly good condition, and local men who have been with speed or are threatened with developing it are being whirled around the half-mile circuit every day. The track has not been rescued with an idea of holding race meets there although it is possible that some scrub races may be held later in the season. The track has been improved as a workout course and the fact is very much appreciated by various horsemen. Automobile owners also find some pleasure in speeding around the course and this fact, together with the fact that there is a good baseball field within the enclosure, makes it safe to predict that the park will be more the center of attraction this summer than it has been for decades.

Danielson's street signs are again in place. The first time that the signs were put up a few months ago, they were taken down and sent back to the manufacturer, who stated that they were not made to the standard claimed for them. This has been done.

PUTNAM

Gravesendia Company Liberal With Injured Artist. Matrons—Remonstrance—Wedding—Eugene Deott in Trouble on Anniversary—Death of Mrs. J. B. Potter.

Arthur Matras, the young man who was so badly injured by coming in contact with a live wire while at work on a roof at North Gravesendia in July of last year, has received a check of $5,000 from the Gravesendia company, against which suit was brought, and has an agreement with that company whereby they will employ him for the remainder of his life at the rate of $8 a week.

Matras makes the following statement as to how he came to be injured:

"I was working on a building putting on a tin roof. I had a crowbar and was walking along bending over the edge. As it passed under the wire which was running over the building, and which contained a high voltage, the bar struck me. I fell and the electricity burning my legs, though it was there that I received my worst injury, but it did not stop me. As a result I have lost two fingers from my right hand and one from my left. I have a hole in my right leg that you can put your whole foot into and my other leg is also badly injured. I was saved from falling to the ground by a fellow worker who caught me. But I was unconscious when they picked me up."

I was taken to a Putnam hospital and the doctors said that the best they could do was to bandage the injured parts, but that I could not live more than two days. I remained under the wire a number of times, taking skin from my back and from other parts of my body to bandage my legs. I am still going to a hospital once a week to have the wounds dressed.

Just below his right knee there is a place where the leg is not more than two inches in thickness. The upper part of the leg is also disfigured. His left leg is mangled, but not so seriously. He is now, with care, able to walk short distances.
